

Dear Treatment Provider:

You're invited to participate in an online study through Drexel University. For my dissertation, I am seeking treatment providers within residential juvenile justice facilities, including detention centers and residential juvenile justice placements, to examine approaches to clinical decision-making.

Drexel University's Institutional Review Board (IRB) has approved this research study (IRB # 19582). Participation in this online study is completely voluntary. The survey will take approximately 30 minutes to complete, responses will be anonymous, and no identifying information will be linked to survey responses. All data will be kept in secure files. By completing the survey, you are indicating your voluntary participation. If you choose to participate, you can stop or withdraw your participation at any time.

If you choose to participate, you will be asked to read a case study about a client and answer questions based on the information you read. You will also be asked to provide some brief demographic information about yourself.

If you agree to participate in the study, please access the survey via this link:
