

Community Reinforcement and Family Training (CRAFT)

Working with families of substance abusers

Dr. Robert J. Meyers, who has developed and researched CRAFT in the United States and abroad, has agreed to deliver a two and a half-day training course on this revolutionary evidence-based program.

Supported by 20 years of peer-reviewed research, Community Reinforcement and Family Training (CRAFT) is a comprehensive behavioral program that teaches families to optimize their impact while avoiding confrontation or detachment.

CRAFT methods are evidence-based and provide families with a hopeful, positive, and more effective alternative to addressing substance problems than other intervention programs.

The training will take place on May 11-13, 2015
at the Ada County Sheriff's Offices
7200 Barrister Drive—Boise, ID 83704

Who Should Attend: Psychologists, mental health professionals, social workers, drug and alcohol counselors, primary health care workers, and other helping professionals working with families. Expertise in substance abuse is not necessary.*

Training Fee: $400 for two and a half days; includes instruction materials, CRAFT forms and procedure checklist, and lunch.

Continuing Education: Continuing Education Credits are available for most participants (15 hours).

Registration: We have a limited number of spaces for this training. We are offering this opportunity to all interested on a first-come, first-serve basis.
