A FEW QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

What is an RFNS?

RFNS stands for Request for Nutritional Supplies. This is a term often used to describe the form WIC staff complete to approve a hospital-grade breast pump rental.

How do I submit a rental approval form to a medical supply vendor?

Once a form is created in WISPr, you can save and/or print the PDF form. It is your agency's decision whether approval forms are faxed and/or emailed to medical supply vendors. Please communicate with your medical supply vendors if you plan to change how you currently submit the approval forms.

Do I need to notify the State WIC Office when I complete a breast pump rental approval in WISPr?

No. The State WIC Office will check for a rental approval in WISPr when an invoice is received from a medical supply vendor. If the State WIC Office receives an invoice and does not find an approval in WISPr, they will contact the Breastfeeding Coordinator for your agency.

How do we document and store prescriptions for breast pump rentals?

To complete the rental approval in WISPr, you must enter information from the prescription. This includes the doctor's name, the date the prescription was signed, and how long the prescription is valid for. As an agency, you can choose how you want to store prescriptions. You may want to include a copy of the prescription when sending the RFNS to medical supply vendors.

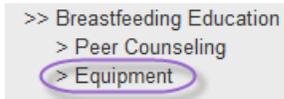

How do we document that a participant has been informed of their responsibilities regarding a breast pump rental?

Because the form is electronic, we do not have a place for the participant to sign. It is still important to inform the participant of the terms and document how and when this was done. There is a checkbox on the approval form that should be checked to acknowledge the participant was informed of the rental terms. There is also a Notes section where you can include how and when these terms were communicated to the participant.

A medical supply vendor is encouraged to have participants sign paperwork typical for any customer. If desired, the medical supply vendor could have the participant sign and date next to the Participant Responsibilities section on the breast pump rental approval form.
