					Screening of Resilience in Kootenai County reached approximately 500 parents, providers and stakeholders; Established the North Idaho Trauma Care Collaborative whose emphasis is uniting key stakeholders throughout North Idaho to create a Trust Based Relational Intervention (TBRI) centered community to include enhanced training and funding for such; additionally, efforts are on-going to include rural communities in this effort and the sub-committee sponsored screenings of both Resilience and Paper Tigers in Bonner County reaching parents and providers for exposure to the topic of ACES and Resilience; sub-committee members also attended training on engaging stakeholders to develop a community strategy around implementation of Trauma Informed Care	Yes
Children's Mental Health	Trauma -Informed System of Care	Youth and Families receive evidence-based, trauma-informed care in all areas of the system of care	On-going			Yes
Children's Mental Health	Limited Access to Psychiatric Services	Advocate for system enhancements to increase the number of Child and Adolescent Psychiatrists in the region				Yes
Children's Mental Health	Lack of providers with specific Evidence Based Practice training and/or certification to address the needs of youth and families' living with SED	Secure funding to bring specialized training in specific EBP's for youth and families to the region. Advocate for improvements in reimbursements for providers to be certified in EBP's and for demonstrating improved outcomes	On-going
Children's Mental Health	Stakeholder training and engagement around YES	Parents, providers and stakeholders will be trained in the new System of Care. The R1BHB will collaborate in this process and support opportunities to advocate for the needs of region 1, participate in workgroups, and informing and guiding implementation efforts in Region 1.	2018
Children's Mental Health	Alternatives to hospitalization or JDC placement of youth in crisis: to include crisis respite, partial hospitalization, day treatment	Providers responding to youth experiencing mental health emergencies will have the training and resources needed to provide the appropriate crisis response to meet the needs of the youth and family. When providers have access to an array of resources to utilize during a crisis, there will be less reliance on using detention facilities or emergency departments as a safety net

Children's Mental Health	Service array that is responsive to varying needs at the appropriate level of care	The region has limited resources for youth who have needs beyond basic outpatient (i.e., therapy and CBRS). The goal would be to ensure communication regarding this gap is articulated to the YES project and to the State Planning Council. There is a lack of therapeutic foster care homes, limited crisis respite options, residential treatment is not local, no day treatment or partial hospitalization.	On-going
Children's Mental Health	Lack of providers to serve youth with dual diagnosis	Advocate for localizing inpatient SUD treatment for adolescents as well as efforts and incentives to increase outpatient providers to receive additional training and improve the number of resources for this in general throughout the region
